Jala Makhzoumi, acting Middle East Chapter President of IFLA, and Ziad Amine, Managing Partner of MEMEDIA Publishing, signed a Memorandum of Cooperation that aims to bring together landscape professionals in the region, contribute to knowledge management, and drive excellence in landscape architecture.

IFLA ME, as the regional chapter representing the Middle East region, covers GCC countries and countries of the Levant. It is one of five regions under the International Federation of Landscape Architects, the international organization representing 77 national landscape associations. IFLA ME is committed to working with the landscape community to support the establishment of national landscape associations in the region, as currently, only three countries have national associations.

LMEM has been publishing landscape projects and showcasing the work of landscape professionals for 16 years. Now, in collaboration with IFLA ME, the magazine will expand its horizons and feature sections, initiatives, and programs related to landscape architecture. This partnership is an important step towards promoting the achievements of the landscape profession and increasing awareness of its importance in the Middle East region. ■
